

Mardi Himal Trek (Highest point 4,200 meters)

Mardi Himal Trek is a relatively short but highly rewarding trekking route in Nepal, known for its stunning mountain views, diverse landscapes, and less crowded trails compared to some of the more popular treks like the Annapurna Base Camp Trek. Located in the Annapurna Conservation Area, this trek offers trekkers an opportunity to explore the natural beauty of the Annapurna region while enjoying close-up views of the iconic Mardi Himal and its neighboring peaks, such as Machapuchare (Fishtail), Annapurna South, and Hiunchuli.

Best time to trek:

Autumn (September to November): This is considered the best time for the trek, with clear skies, mild temperatures, and excellent visibility of the mountain views.

Spring (March to May): Spring is also a great time, as the trails are lined with blooming rhododendron flowers, adding vibrant colors to the landscape.
